

Zombie

The Cranberries was an Irish alternative rock band that was active from 1989 to 2019. It was founded in Limerick, Ireland in 1989. The band were formed by lead singer Dolores O'Riordan, guitarist Noel Hogan, bassist Mike Hogan and drummer Fergal Lawler. He rose to international fame in the 1990s with his debut album, Everybody Else Is Doing It, So Why Can't We?, which became a commercial success, selling more than five million copies in the United States alone. The band disbanded following the release of the posthumous album In the End in 2019, one year after Dolores O'Riordan's passing on January 15, 2018.

Zombie was written in response to the death of Johnathan Ball, 3, and Tim Parry, 12, who had been killed in the IRA England when two devices hidden in litter bins were detonated. Ball died at the scene of the bombing as a result of his shrapnel-inflicted injuries and, five days later, Parry lost his life as a result of head injuries. there were also 56 others were injured, some seriously. I have chosen this song because I used to hear it on the radio when I was little. Also, I chose it because, in the past, I sang without knowing the meaning and now, when I discovered it, I was very surprised.
